

Demons Have a Direct Influence in the Human Mind

From Universe of the Spirits, by Norberto Keppe

The demons want human beings to blame their senses for their problems so that they themselves can be free of any suspicion (and by the way, as demons have no physical body, they wish to remain hidden in their continued attempts to directly merge with the human mind). But the worst thing of all is that humanity accepted demonic inspiration and began to attack and despise the body as if it were a source of great sin.

I can affirm that it is either God and His angels who act in the human mind, or the evil spirits who do. Originally, it is the divine (scalar) energy that sustains everything and the malicious spirits who interfere to deviate us from our true path. Not knowing this means we become puppets of the malignant spiritual world.

It is extremely important to perceive the level of direct influence that the human being receives in his mind from the spiritual world. This can lead him to goodness or evil; which path he takes depends on his choice. The religious people have always called this phenomenon temptation by demons, which have had a strong desire to butcher man since he was created.

- Why does God not forgive Lucifer and his followers?
- But do you believe that God does not forgive them?
- How do you mean?
- It is Lucifer and his followers who don't want anything to do with goodness because they feel themselves burned by consciousness.

It is very important to pay attention to the evil spirits that Allan Kardec wrote about on page 38 of his book, "Evil spirits invite us to evil; it is a pleasure for them to see us succumb and fall into their state ... Evil spirits manifest themselves spontaneously, or through evocation." Note that Kardec had a perfect understanding of the process of temptation, and especially about the pleasure evil spirits derive from the evil they do, which clarifies that the same happens with human beings.

A fundamental truth that must be revealed is that there is no person alive in this world who is not in contact with spirits—either good ones or, especially, evil ones, believe it or not, whether the person is religious or more oriented to the material world. This is the human condition we find ourselves in.
